Forecast for Monday 17 Jun 2024

Weather: Any valley mist patches quickly clearing. Becoming rather cloudy from the north with showers developing during the morning, perhaps still heavy in places, with a low risk of an isolated thunderstorm. However, the showers will tend to weaken through the afternoon, with sunny spells becoming more prevalent by evening.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 600m: 70% improving to 90% or more.

Low cloud and visibility: Perhaps some patchy cloud around 600m at first in the morning. However, bases soon lifting largely above summits, although some brief reductions possible in any heavier showers that develop. Generally very good visibility outside showers, with brief reductions in showers.
